Introductory Note

In this Part of a Bibliography of Virginia, the plan has been to include titles of the session acts and of the journals of the general assembly, 1619-1776, arranged chronologically. This is, therefore, a collection of titles of the printed official documents of the colony of a legislative nature, and forms a complement to Part II, which included titles of all printed official documents, 1776-1916. In the early assemblies "orders" were adopted which had all the force of law; for this reason, they are included in this Bibliography. "Papers" which were presented to be adopted by the assemblies are also included. As in Parts I and II of the Bibliography, it has not been the general purpose either to investigate or list manuscripts. In a few instances only, where it seemed most necessary, references have been made to manuscript material. For further information in regard to the documents of any date the reader is referred to the following: prefaces and notes in Hening's Statutes; prefaces in the Journals of the House of Burgesses, and of the Council, edited by J. P. Kennedy and H. R. McIlwaine; notes in the Virginia Magazine of History and Biography referred to in the reprinted journals, and notes of W. C. Torrence in his Trial Bibliography of Colonial Virginia. It was deemed superfluous to make references in all instances to these, when any needed information might be obtained by means of their indexes and chronological arrangement. Where new information has been found notes have been added. In order to provide means of permanent identification of the copies of the Virginia laws recently presented to the state library by the state law library, full notes have been made about them. The titles relative to the revolutionary conventions have been included, as each convention was a step in the transition from the old colonial assembly to the new assembly of the Commonwealth.

Announcement was made in Part II of this Bibliography that Part III would include titles of United States printed documents relating to Virginia. Due to my absence of three months from the library, the research required for such a compilation has been delayed, and the printing of the titles has been postponed, therefore, for Part IV. Acknowledgment is made to Morgan P. Robinson, of the state library, for suggestions.

In Hening, v. 1. p. 309-379.

Of the 35 acts, 15 are given by titles only.

It is probable that these acts were printed separately under the title "All the public acts . . . 1732," as were the acts of 1730. No copy in a separate form has been found. These acts, or rather the public acts, were printed in the collection of all acts now in force, 1733, p. 463-509.

The Library has a second copy, 1 p. l., and 509 p. The List of subscribers' names is wanting, and also the Table to the laws. The names of A. Thweatt and Theophilus Feild (?) are on the title-page.

The Library has a third copy, complete (622 p.), but lacking the List of subscribers' names. The name of "Thruston James, 1744 Williamsburg," is on the inside of the back cover, and the name of "George W. James" is on the front fly-leaf.

The Library has a fourth copy, complete, formerly in the state law library.

This is not a revisal, but a collection as the title says. It is the first collection of Virginia laws published in Virginia. The members of the committee were John Holloway, John Clayton, Archibald Blair, John Randolph, William Robertson. George Webb prepared the copy for the press, and compiled the Table. See Hening's references in many places to this collection, which he used.

The public laws of the session of the 1732 are included in the text.

is on page 1: "This pamphlet, being the first of the printed session laws of Virginia was presented to the Library of Commonwealth of Va. by W. Hoffman Winters Asst. Librarian N. Y. law institute, N. Y. City, May 28, 1878." This copy is bound with the Laws of 10 George II., 1736, and Laws of 12 George II., 1738.

This is the first time the public and private acts of a session were printed in full. In 1730 the public acts of that session were printed by William Parks, and though no copy has been found it is likely that he printed also the public acts of the session of 1732 in separate form. The printing of the public acts of 1732, and the titles only of private acts of this session in the collection of laws published in 1733 (p. 463-509) supports the view that the public acts had been printed separately.
